CIRCUIT COURT
IS GRINDING

Saint Layne Accused of Murder Gets Light Sentence.

ARE SEVERAL OTHER CASES.

Rapid Disposition of Several Was Made Yesterday By The Court.

After motion hour Tuesday morning the case of the Commonwealth against Saint Layne, a young negro man, indicted for willful murder, in killing another negro, George Murray, about 16 years of age, was called.

The killing occurred last summer in "San Domingo," east of the city. The boy was shot a little after 4 o'clock and died about 10 o'clock that night.

The evidence for the prosecution was very strong against Layne, especially that of a sister of the boy killed. The sister's evidence was denied in toto by Layne when he took the stand. Of course the jury would doubt the truthfulness of Layne's statement in his own defense, but when Dr. T. W. Perkins testified, the jury was doubtless unprepared to hear the Dr. substantiate a most important statement of the defendant. The statement was that the defendant and the dead boy had not previously had any quarrel and that the killing was accidental. The dead boy's sister testified that her brother had told her that he was going to die and that Layne had shot him without cause.

Dr. Perkins, who answered the call to attend Murray after he had been shot, testified that his examination convinced him that the wound would cause the boy's death and that he told him he would die and then asked him why Layne had shot him. The boy's answer was that "they were playing" when the pistol fired. Nothing the boy said to Dr. Perkins incriminated Layne further than that he had been shot by Layne. Layne repeated what he had stated at his examining trial before Judge Knight about his pistol going off by it hitting an 8-penny nail in the counter when he started to remove it from the top of the counter to a place under the counter.

The jury after the argument, took the case. After three o'clock the jury returned a verdict finding Layne guilty of involuntary manslaughter and fixed his punishment at 60 days at hard labor and to pay a fine of $100.

The next case taken up was the Commonwealth against Charlie Watkins, colored, charged with seduction under promise of marriage. After hearing the evidence of a few witnesses, the court gave the attorneys fifteen minutes each for argument. At the conclusion of the arguments the case was given to the jury. The balance of the petit jury was discharged until yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

Yesterday morning, after motion hour, the case of the Commonwealth against Fannie Leavell, under indictment for petit larceny, was called. After a jury had been empaneled the hearing of testimony began.

After motion hour the court called the Commonwealth docket and attempted to take up the case of Fannie Leavell, colored, indicted for petit larceny. There were so few witnesses present that the case could not be tried and the court then called the case of Ed Thomas, colored, indicted for willful murder. The scarcity of witnesses in this case compelled an abandonment of this trial until later in the day. The court became somewhat exasperated at the absence of witnesses who had been subpoenaed and assessed a fine against several of the witnesses who later showed up. He also fined one of the attorneys in one of the cases named in the sum of $5 for what seemed to be the cause of a witness coming in late.

The Judge announced from the bench that he intended to fine colored witnesses $1 and white witnesses $2 for coming in late. In some cases he stated that the fine would be $5. Owing to witnesses causing so much loss of the time of the court the trial of Ed Thomas was set aside until after the trial of Fannie Leavell was completed and given to the jury. By persistent effort the Commonwealth finally got the Leavell case before the court and the trial was begun at 10:45.

The trial of Ed Thomas for willful murder, will probably consume more time than any of the cases on the docket.

Before taking up the case of Fannie Leavell the jury in the case of the Commonwealth against Charlie Watkins for seduction under promise of marriage, tried Tuesday afternoon, appeared before the bench and handed in a verdict of guilty. The indeterminate penalty is from one to five years in the penitentiary.

The jury took the case of Fannie Leavell before noon and in a few minutes rendered a verdict of not guilty. The amount she was charged with having stolen was only $10—said to have been taken from another colored woman.

The court took up the case of Ed Thomas after the noon hour and it was in progress when we went to press.

The six suits growing out of the county election last fall, abandoned by the plaintiffs, were formally dismissed Tuesday.

CAUGHT WITH DICTAGRAPH

Henderson's Postoffice Looters Trapped Into Giving Themselves Away.

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 25.—Another sensation was sprung in the Grider postoffice case when inspectors Greenway, Robinson, Zimmerman, Jones and Deputy United States Marshal Jackson unearthed $1,190 in $10 and $20 Henderson National Bank notes, all forged with the names of R. H. Soaper, president, and C. A. Katterjohn, cashier, in a stable at the home of Roy Rutledge's parents on South Green street.

EASILY TRAPPED.

Grider and Rutledge were easily trapped by the officers. Inspectors knew that in order to get results from the dictagraph the prisoners would necessarily have to be gotten together.

Friday afternoon Jailer Howard, at Owensboro, was instructed to take Grider out of his cell ostensibly to take a bath. While the jailer remained with him, the government sleuths were admitted to Grider's cell, where they placed the little instrument that has caused the downfall of many a criminal, under his cot.

The wire was run into the outer jail office to the receiver on a desk. After Grider had taken his bath he was asked if he wanted to see his friend Rutledge, and quickly answered in the affirmative. Rutledge was taken from a cell on the second floor and placed in Grider's cell.

UNFOLD HIDING PLACE.

Grider and Rutledge sat down on the cot and lost no time in telling each other what had happened since Grider's arrest. The officer at the dictagraph receiver heard every word they uttered, and really fell out of his chair when he heard Grider ask Rutledge what he did with the money. Rutledge told him he had buried it, securely wrapped in oil cloth, placed in a tin can with a top on it, and the can placed in a tin bucket to keep the currency from molding. He said it was buried under a pile of kindling in his stable, and it was so deep that no one could ever locate it.

With this information the officers caught the first train to Henderson.

JOHN F. BIBLE
QUITS OWLS

And Resigns as President And States His Reasons In Nest.

CREATES GREAT SENSATION.

Statement By Mr. Bible and By Moses R. Glenn, Organizer.

A big sensation was sprung at the meeting of the newly instituted nest of the Order of Owls Tuesday night. A class of 15 was about to be inducted into the order when Hon. John F. Bible, President of the nest, arose and stated that it was his intention to withdraw from that office and from the order and laid some sensational correspondence before the members. He said that the following news item recently came under his notice:

Asks Owl Receiver.

"South Bend, Ind., Feb. 3.—Jonas O. Hoover, of Chicago, has asked the St. Joseph Circuit Court of this city to appoint a receiver for the Order of Owls, a fraternal organization with a membership of 267,000, the headquarters of which are in South Bend. The suit also is directed against John W. Talbot, supreme president of the order. Hoover asserts that the order owes him $2,000 for attorney fees. Hoover alleges that the supreme nest of Owls in this city receives annually $60,000 in dues from the members, and further says that amount is dissipated."

He at once set on foot an investigation and wrote to Gov. Ralston, of Indiana, asking for official light on the subject. He received the letter below, which he read.

Mr. John Franklin Bible,
Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

Dear Sir:
Your letter of February 18th to Gov. Ralston was promptly forwarded in confidence to a very reliable and well informed gentleman at South Bend, and his reply came this morning. He does not desire his name mentioned, therefore it is withheld.

Here is a copy of his letter in full: "You will be strictly within the truth by saying to Mr. Bible that what he sets forth in his letter of inquiry is true and that much more could be said along that line without exaggeration."

(The head of the organization was here severely criticised.)

"Tell Mr. Bible if he wants to get the true inwardness of this fellow to write Attorney F. J. Lewis Meyer, ex-Mayor Chas. L. Goetz or Detective Wm. Cassidy, all living in South Bend. Another man to communicate with is Jonas O. Hoover, a Chicago attorney, who knows all about the Supreme Nest and who for years was quite intimate with its ruler."

If you want anything further, let me know."

Hoping this information will be of substantial service to you, I am

Very truly yours,
B. B. JOHNSON,
Secretary.

February 21, 1914.

Taking the figures given as a basis, Mr. Bible said the fee of $5 for each member would amount to $1,335,000 and that the annual tax of 40 cents required to be sent to Talbot would net him $106,800 every year. This vast fund is handled personally by the head of the home nest, who is not under the control of the order, but is a permanent officer.

The order here has been instituted by Moses R. Glenn and already about 175 members have been admitted, including many of the most prominent citizens.

Following these disclosures the meeting decided not to initiate the waiting class, but the membership present named Mr. Bible as chairman of a committee to further investigate, he to appoint other members. Mr. Bible appointed Judge T. P. Cook, Judge W. P. Winfree and A. M. Wallis to act with him. They will try, he says, to find some way to hold the lodge together on an independent basis and if this cannot be done to recover the money paid in by nearly 200 members, about $1,000.

Mr. Glenn Talks.

Mr. Glenn who was seen yesterday is inclined to treat the matter lightly. He said: "Mr. Talbot has made some enemies during his busy life, some of them in politics and some in the practice of his profession of the law. The charges alluded to by Mr. Bible are old ones that have been threshed out and exploded. He produced a pamphlet published at Indianapolis that devoted several pages to testimonials of good character given to Mr. Talbot. These were signed by T. E. Howard, Attorney, South Bend, Ind.; Cabennis Crabell, Postmaster; J. E. Neff, Secretary Union Trust Co.; Earl R. Penn, Indiana I. O. O. F., and Rupert St. John, of the Interstate Manufacturing Co., all of South Bend."

Mr. Bible's Statement.

Mr. Bible submitted the following statement in writing regarding his severing his connection with the Order of Owls.

"I became suspicious some two weeks ago that all was not right with the supreme officer of the order of Owls. A newspaper clipping was handed me setting forth the fact that a receiver had been asked for on the grounds that the order had 267,000 members and that the Supreme President of the order received vast amounts of money annually which was improperly expended."

I wrote to the Mayor at South Bend, Indiana, where the Supreme President is located and he advised me that the Judge of the Court to whom application for receiver was made stated that the application did not reach him in time to grant it. I then took the subject up with Gov. Ralston, of Indiana, and his Secretary's letter is herewith submitted, which is clear and self explanatory. I then wrote a reliable party in South Bend that we would have a large class to take in last night and that if things were wrong I did not want to take their money and could not afford to be connected with the order myself. This South Bend party wired me yesterday afternoon as follows: "Would suggest that you postpone your meeting tonight and come to South Bend and make a personal investigation."

I took the telegram to mean that I should not take the money from these candidates until I had investigated the matter. This of course caused me to feel stronger than ever that my suspicions were well founded. I then for the first time read the constitution and bylaws of the Supreme Nest of the order, and I was shocked beyond any language to express and I felt that I had been derelict in my duties in not better informing myself before joining the order. I learned from the Constitution that the Supreme officer is an outcast and not subject to removal by the membership at large at all. That the membership at large has no control over his actions or the disbursement of funds paid by the membership. If true as reported in the application for receivership that there are 267,000 members, then at 40 cents per head per capital tax this supreme officer receives annually from this source $106,800 over which the membership has no control. If there are 267,000 members, the supreme officer and his staff of organizers have received from the $5.00 initiation dues, if all were taken in as charter members, $1,335,000 over which the membership has no control.

Whether this Supreme officer be a bad man or not I could not consistently affiliate with an order which is so undemocratic in its control of all officers and funds of the supreme order. Such methods violate every principle of my idea of fraternity. My idea of fraternity is that every man has an equal voice in its control, and I can not conceive of a fraternal order in free America or elsewhere where all officers are not

The Cox bill, designed to strengthen the State game laws, was killed in the House at Frankfort when it had been amended so that it did not resemble the original draft. In the Senate the Finn bill, giving added powers to the Railroad Commission, was reported unfavorably.

When the Glenn-Greene Insurance Rating Bill comes up in the Senate it will be amended so that the companies will make the rates subject to supervision of the State Rating Board. The assessment against the companies will be cut from $100,000 to $150,000. The two bills in which Hopkinsville is so vitally concerned are not out of the woods. Each has passed one house.

FLOUR WINS
A VICTORY

Federal Inspector Must Show Poison Sufficient to Injure Health.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Millers and food manufacturers throughout the country won a decisive victory over the government when the supreme court held that federal inspectors under the pure food law could not condemn "bleached" flour unless they proved that the flour contained enough poisonous ingredients added in bleaching to make the flour injurious to health.

Officials of the department of agriculture have contended that the adding of any quantity of poisonous ingredients was in violation of the law.

Feeling this way about it, my only course was to resign the Presidency of the local order 1314 and sever immediately my membership with such an undemocratic and unfraternal order. I took prompt action so that all might know immediately my position and my reasons therefor.

THE BRIDGE

I have worked in Mill No. 14 for several years. I have had many happy years there and many sad ones.
 The ones when I used to walk home with Louise every night were the mighty happy ones.

I had seen her going past at night with the others. She worked, you see, at the stocking factory just below our mill.

It was summer when I first saw her walking on ahead of me in the long twilight. All that fall I never walked with her, although we were about the only two who took the bridge path home.

As winter came on the darkness
 came sooner, and it was always dark on the bridge, and we just sort of naturally got to walking across together at night. She would wait until I was through and then we'd go across together. I got so I'd wait for night to come. Of course I was always ready enough for quitting time, but that wasn't the reason any more, you understand. I used to make myself feel chesty and light-headed by bragging to myself about how she must enjoy walking with me.

Maybe I didn't feel scared when spring came and the days got so long that she could have got home before night if she had wanted to;
 but maybe I wasn't tickled when she kept on waiting and walking with me just the same.

During this time she had got promoted and was teaching the other girls the efficiency method. One day she told me she had to go to Ohio to teach the method in the branch plant there.

I got letters, lots of them, at first,
 but they began to fall off, and soon there wasn't any coming at all. I kept writing to the address, and, although none of them ever came back, there was no answer.

A year and a half later one night
 I was coming from work alone. I was thinking how happy those nights used to be and how lonely they had become, when I heard a woman crying, and hurrying on saw a richly dressed woman tear off her fur coat and start to climb toward the water side of the rail. I got her, though, before she had made it and yanked her back. She was sobbing and struggling and begging me to let her go and end it all.

I tried to quiet her down, put her coat on her and everything that I could think of; but she still kept moaning under her big hat with the red ostrich plumes. I tried to get her home, but she burst out and says: "I haven't any home. My sisters couldn't stand the disgrace of it, and it would kill my mother to know what I've been. Let me end it all here."

I took her head between my hands and looked into her face, for that voice was like something you remember from away back, but can't place.
 It was Louise. My face was in the dark more and she didn't know me until I told her. I can't tell how I acted nor how weak and stunned I felt, but I gathered her up in my arms and told her to tell me what had happened to make her feel and act this way.

She began and told me all her sad story.
 She says: "I suppose you might as well know it all. You used to be the best friend I had, and I must tell somebody. You know when I went to Ohio I kept writing to you for a while and then stopped. I got ashamed to write any more to you.
 I knew how good you were."

I tried to stop from feeling so foolish about that, but she went on.
 "I met what I thought was a nice young fellow, who took me out to lots of things and who showed me a good time always. I was sending all of the money I could spare home to mother, and so he brought me all the pleasure I had then.

"One holiday we went to Columbus. He said he had apartments there. He proposed to me that evening in his fine rooms. I thought then he meant marriage. I promised to give him his answer in the morning and started to leave. He had been so splendid to me that I was sort of overcome and trembly, and when all of a sudden he put his back to the door I understood what a scoundrel he was and fainted dead away. The shock of seeing him change from a friend to an enemy that quick was too much for me."

Here she sobbed and told the rest of her tale as though each word would kill her.

"He went away, but left me

locked in with the phone disconnec-ed. What could I do? I got desperate and decided to make the best of a bad bargain. I had all the clothes I wanted, money and freedom all day long after he found I wasn't going to run away. We stayed there over a year.

"One day I answered the phone and some woman asked for him, and when he was coming out. She took me for a servant in his home. I asked him what he was going to do with me now, for I put several things together, his late disgust with me and anger, and knew that he was done with me forever. I told him that he had ruined by life and asked him if he was going to throw me away. It ended by my going away. He paid a week's lodging at a hotel for me.

"I went to the home of the girl whom he was deserting me for and told her everything. She wept and held my hand, and I could see she was sincere in her sympathy.

"The next day he came to my hotel and tried to make me call up his fiancée and tell her it was a lie, as she had driven him out for spoiling my life. I refused, of course.

"I wouldn't let him come to call on me any longer; but that night when I went into the hotel dining room to eat—it was to be my last meal, and after that I didn't know what I would do—he came in and sat down at my table. Even as scared as I was I noticed a large, elderly man who followed him in and sat down nearby unnoticed. My persecutor tried to coax me into fixing up the break between him and the girl, but I wouldn't. Then he grew black in the face and raised a heavy water pitcher to strike me. I upset my chair and leaped, but he would have struck me if it hadn't been for the elderly man, who knocked him down. The old man grabbed my arm and hurried me out of the room, slipped a roll of bills into my pocket as he said: 'My daughter told me your story and his.
 He shan't wreck my girl's life, too.
 I saw it all. You aren't to blame.
 Take this and go home at once.' He went back into the dining room, where they were all shouting and running around, and I got my things and came back here. I got here tonight. I couldn't go home when I got here, so I came down to the bridge and was going to end it all. There is no one now"—and she leaned her head on the rail wearily.

"I want you to come with me," I said. I don't know all that I did say, or anything very exactly, but it must have convinced her, for she's been my wife ever since.

A CENTURY AGO.

One hundred years ago Prince von Schwartzberg with part of the allied army entered Switzerland, as friends, to invade France, for the purpose of restoring Louis XVIII.
 to the throne, in which project, as all readers of history know, they eventually succeeded. Prince von Schwartzberg was one of the great commanders in the Napoleonic wars.
 He served against the French in the campaigns of 1794 and 1799. In 1810 he became general of the Austrian cavalry. After the peace of Vienna he negotiated the marriage of Napoleon and Maria Louisa. On the alliance of Austria with France, he was placed by Napoleon at the head of the Austrian forces in the Russian campaign. In 1813 he was made commander-in-chief of the allied army, and, after defeating Napoleon at Leipsic, he began the advance on Paris.

QUAINT SPORTING CONTESTS.

Lancashire and Yorkshire are the home of quaint sporting contests.
 Large sums have changed hands over matches between champions in the art of balancing a cork on the end of the nose, an art some northern workmen practice a good deal in their spare moments. And curious challenges keep appearing at times in the northern English sporting press.

In one recent advertisement the advertiser backed himself for 20 pounds to throw the case of a match box further in 20 throws than any other man in England.—London Mail.

 hysterics at will."—Puck.

Nero Played a Bagpipe.
Although bagpipes are usually associated with Scotland, they are not peculiar to the Highlands. It is an ancient Greek and Roman instrument. Chaucer represents the miller as skilled in playing bagpipes.

"Robber Dollar Sale."

A "robber dollar sale" was the title of a store's recent announcement intended to emphasize the idea that during the month a dollar could be stretched to cover more than its real value, according to the Clothier and Furnisher. To give forceful illustration, ten one-dollar bills were attached to the placard and were so folded that the figure one showed only on the bill at each end, so that at first glance the group looked like a much stretched single dollar.

OWN PRESS AGENT

Amazing Journal to Be Sold at Auction.

Maj.-Gen. Macquarie, Who Ruled New South Wales, Was a Regular Pooh-bah; Filled All Offices and Subjugated Natives.

Who was the valiant man in modern history, as well as the greatest Pooh-bah on record? One is inclined, after reading extracts from his voluminous diaries and from the notes and chronicles of his that soon are to be sold at auction in London, to award these distinctions to the late Maj.-Gen. L. Macquarie, who once was governor of New South Wales—or, rather, who was New South Wales in his day, and not merely the king's representative.

Most probably you never have heard of Maj.-Gen. Macquarie before, and no more had nine out of ten dwellers in these islands until it was announced that these private journals of his, a weighty package that has been tossed about for eighty-nine years since it left Botany Bay, would be sold to the highest bidder at Sotheby's famous salesrooms on the 22d of this month, writes a London correspondent of the Buffalo Express. For Macquarie was his own best press agent, like a certain famous personage, who now is in South America, and after his demise his stock fell rapidly, but in the early days of 1800 he was absolutely and entirely it in New South Wales. He was the law and everything else, including commander of the troops, chancellor of the exchequer, lord chief justice, lord mayor, chief of police, collector of taxes, taker of the census and lord high everything else, just like Gilbert's Pooh-bah.

In short, he believed in Maj.-Gen. Macquarie. Fewer than forty years then had passed since Capt. Cook's first encounter with the natives, and Australia was new to the white man—just the place for an official with a habit of discovering rivers and mountains and improving them by affixing his celebrated name to them.

Stones "laid by L. Macquarie, Esq." were as numerous as the opportunities for planting them. He was the champion foundation stone layer of all time.

But the name of Macquarie was plastered also on the works of nature. There are Macquarie streets and Macquarie buildings everywhere, and there are Macquarie county, Macquarie marshes, Macquarie plains, Macquarie river, Macquarie harbor, Macquarie island. And when he founded a new convict settlement it, inevitably, became Port Macquarie.

He never took advice. But he gave it by the ton. When he visited Hobart he advised the inspector of works where to build the hospital, where to put the jail and where to put the principal square and what to call it—Macquarie, as a matter of course.

In his own opinion Macquarie was the pioneer of religion and morality. Natives were taught not to steal by being shot at sight with their wives and families—innocent with guilt. Whole tribes disappeared, but Macquarie stood amazed at his own humanity. Did he not start a school for native children and hold annual conferences with the chiefs? Chiefs who stayed away were ordered to be destroyed.

Some writers on Australia have painted Macquarie a monster. It is more interesting to recall that he struck the English public of his own day as a man too merciful for his job.

How he organized exploring parties, founded the city of Bathurst, made the first road to the Blue mountains and marked out sites for Windsor, Castlereagh, Wilberforce and Richmond, with many of the rest of his acts, are they not written in these faded chronicles, the property of a female descendant, now for sale? There are eighty pages of foolscap of his adventures with natives alone. The description of his journey to the Blue mountains is little shorter.

Jimmy's Essay.

Explicit Directions.

The saleswoman at the ready-to-wear millinery counter said something must be done. Nine out of ten women who wished to try on hats could not tell without bothering her which was the front or the side or the back of a hat, and she didn't have time to answer all their questions.

The manager said he would see to it. He did. He put up a sign which enabled ladies to get their own hats on straight and saved the saleswoman from nervous prostration and an increase in salary. It said:

"Take notice! Price tags are placed at the front of all hats in this store."

Nearly Smothered.

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augusta Lomax, of this place, writes: "I had smothering spells every day, so had I expected death any time. I could not sit up in bed, I suffered from worry, troubles. My nerves were unstrung. I had almost given up all hope of ever being better. I tried Cardui, and it did me more good than anything I had ever taken. I am better now than I ever expected to be." Thousands of ladies have written similar letters, telling of the merits of Cardui. It relieved their headache, backache and misery, just as it will relieve yours, if you will let it. Try Cardui. ## KILLING OF ROSENTHAL.

Lieut. Becker Feared Gambler Would Tell of Graft.

New York, Feb. 25.—The crime for which Charles Becker and the four gunmen received sentence of death stirred every stratum of New York society and its echoes were heard in the recent city campaign. Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, was shot down early on the morning of July 15, 1912, in front of the Hotel Metropole, in the heart of the Tenderloin. Becker was a police lieutenant in charge of the "strong arm squad," whose duties were to keep in subjection the gangs of the city and to regulate gambling places and houses of ill fame. Rose, Webber and Vailion said that the police lieutenant made use of his position to collect money from these houses as the price of letting them do business. Rosenthal knew of these operations, they said, and having a grievance against Becker, was about to turn over his evidence to the district attorney.

Sues to Regain Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Gaines, of Cerulean, attended the burial of Mr. Thos. G. Hubbard here yesterday.

GRATITUDE.

A Derby lady has just received a legacy of $500 "in remembrance of a bunch of flowers." Such romantic rewards of little acts of kindness are not uncommon, and some curious instances of the kind are given by the author of "From Piccadilly to Pall Mall." Years ago a tradesman, whose name is now a household word, was employed in a modest capacity in a West end shop. While exhibiting some delicate ware to the very first customer he served he let it fall and break. The customer, a doctor, good-naturedly took the blame and paid for the broken article. Years later the salesman, now a wealthy man, called on the doctor, reminded him of the incident, and settled on him $5,000 a year for life.

OLD FRIEND GONE.

"I suppose you're glad 1913 is past?"
"I don't know," replied the man who is frankly superstitious. "Now I'll have to shoulder my own responsibilities, instead of blaming all the hard luck on the '13."

SUBTLE FLATTERY.

"Bliggins has a wonderfully smart wife."
"Why, he says she believes everything he tells her."
"Yes. She is smart enough to make him believe she believes him."

END OF IT.

Wife—I had a heated discussion today with the landlord about the furnace.
Husband—Yes, and that is all there is going to be heated about it.

SAME OBJECT.

Did you ever notice that a man goes to a lawyer and to a physician for precisely the same purpose—to recover.

PROVISO.

Doing business in a small way is commendable if the man doing business is not too small in his way of doing it.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running or imperfect hearing, and when it is fully closed, deafness is the result. No matter how long the deafness has continued, it can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition. Hearing will be restored, never to be lost again. It is a matter of fact that many cases of deafness have been cured by the use of the "Cure for Deafness" which is sold by the "Cure for Deafness" Co., 111 N. 3rd St., St. Louis, Mo.

SUCCESS WITH CLOVER

WORTHY OF MORE GENERAL GROWTH BY OUR FARMERS.

Crop Should Not Be Looked Upon as Cure for All ills of Soil, but as an Important Factor in Renovation of the Land.

Clover has been grown with varied success in practically every state in the Union. Its beneficial action on the soil, its period of usefulness, the wide range of uses to which it can be put, and its excellence as a hay and pasture crop, all serve to commend it to a place in our cropping system and prove it worthy of more general growth by our farmers. Complaints of worn-out soils, weeds and unprofitable crops, do not come from farmers who have made clover an important factor in the cropping system.

Clover should not be looked upon as a cure for all the ills of the soil but as an important factor in soil renovation and in maintaining or increasing the supply of vegetable matter in the soil. Clover belongs to a class of plants that, with the aid of a bacterial growth on their roots, have the power of absorbing the nitrogen of the air and leaving it in the soil for the use of succeeding crops. The clover plant has a large root system that leaves a considerable amount of vegetable matter in the soil. This decaying vegetable matter proves beneficial, in times of drouth, in holding soil moisture. It also assists in keeping light soils from "washing" and "blowing," and heavy soils from "baking."

The clover roots grow quite deeply, penetrating the subsoil and breaking it up; so that, when they are decayed, the soil suitable for crop growth is made deeper and the drainage is much improved. Results of experiments show that, in continuous wheat farming, the sowing of six pounds of clover seed every spring with the wheat, and plowing under the clover in the fall, has given an average annual increase, during a period of 15 years, of nearly 2.6 bushels per acre. Still better results have been obtained where clover is used in four and five year rotations in combination with grain, cultivated crops and the use of farm manures. On heavy soils, clover should be grown in four and five year rotations, while on lighter soils, and soils badly in need of vegetable matter, it may be more beneficially grown in a three-year rotation.

In growing clover, it is a matter of wisdom to sow only the best seed. Do not sow the seed until it has been given a germination test. This can easily be made by means of two plates and a cotton cloth. Take several folds of a small piece of cotton cloth; thoroughly wet this and scatter between the folds a known number (several hundred) of the seeds to be planted. Place this on one plate and cover with another plate, bottom side up. See that the cloth is kept moist, not wet, and at the end of five or six days, determine the percentage of germination. Seed of poor vitality will not germinate at all; or, if it should, it will at least give weak plants that may not survive the season or the following winter. The seed should be free from weed seeds and other adulterations. Buy seed only from reliable sources, and so far as possible, use home-grown seed, when it is of strong vitality and known purity.

Sowing Clover.

Clover should not be sown too deeply; yet it is desirable to sow it sufficiently deep so that it will neither blow out nor dry out easily. The amount of seed per acre will vary slightly with the method of seeding. It is believed that in general farmers sow too little, rather than too much, seed. When sown separately it should be at the rate of six to ten pounds for red and mammoth, four to six for alsike, three to four for white.

Cold Wind Harmful.

A bitter cold wind blowing on a crop does much permanent harm to the plants, and should be avoided.

FISCAL COURT

To Meet Tomorrow and Make Settlement With Ex-Sheriff Low Johnson.

Next Tuesday the Fiscal Court will meet in regular monthly session. In addition to transaction of routine business the court will make a settlement with ex-Sheriff Low Johnson and give him his quietus. John W. Richards was appointed some time ago to examine Mr. Johnson's books and report to the court at Tuesday's meeting for its final action.

"If I had Only Thought of it at the time! When the baby bruised her head, when Buster was stung by wasps, when little Mary pinched her hand in the door, when father fell off the step-ladder and sprained his foot, when mother had a stitch in her neck, or when a grandmother had a sudden attack of rheumatism, I could have done something." Did accidents ever happen in your household, when you could have done a dozen different things if you had thought of them at the time? You can be ready for any of these emergencies by keeping a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on a convenient shelf. It is so antiseptic, so comforting to a sore spot, so penetrating to an aching joint that it relieves the suffering while you are trying to think up that forgotten "something to do." Get a bottle today. 25c & 50c. All Druggists Sloan's Liniment kills pain. Advertisement.

Effect of Wireless

Waves On Birds.

Observations made in sections of the world where there are many wireless stations indicate that birds are disturbed in a singular way by the wireless waves, says the March Popular Mechanics Magazine. It is stated that gulls are apparently the principal sufferers, but that also large numbers of doves are in some way prevented from finding their way home when there are wireless stations in the line of flight. This strange phenomenon is attributed to some effect of the other waves not yet understood.

A woman at Manchester, England, found to be a carrier of the germs of enteric fever, has been granted a pension upon condition that she remain at home. Sixty cases, 6 of them fatal, were traced to her.

Charles Becker, sentenced to death for complicity in the murder of Rosenthal, in New York, gets a new trial. The cares of the four gunmen were affirmed.

How "Teetotaler" Originated. Teetotaler, the term applied to an abstainer from all fermented liquors, originated with Richard Turner, an artisan of Preston, England, who, contending for the principle at a temperance meeting in 1833, asserted that "Nothing but te-te-total will do." The word was immediately adopted.

INTERURBAN ROAD.

Would Benefit Clarksville, But H. B. M. A. Never Slumbers.

After a rest of a year or more the people of Clarksville have again begun talking about constructing an interurban railroad to run through the best parts of Christian and Trigg counties and Stewart county. The Leaf-Chronicle says that the road would probably be thirty miles long and a start toward interesting promoters will begin at once. From experience it is a well established fact that "promoters" are always easily interested, but the trouble is to interest the men with the money. If the interurban should be built Clarksville may as well begin figuring on Hopkinsville getting into interurban business herself. The H. B. M. A. never sleeps.

Great Wall of China in Perfect Condition.

Few people realize what an almost perfect condition prevails along a large part of the great wall of China. The bricks of the parapet are as firm as ever, and their edges have stood the severe climatic conditions of North China with scarcely a break, as explained in the March Popular Mechanics Magazine. The paving along the top of the wall is so smooth that one may ride over it with a bicycle and the great granite blocks with which it is faced are smooth and as closely fitted as when put in place over two thousand years ago. The entire length of this wall is 1,400 miles, it is 22 ft. high, and 20 ft. in thickness. At intervals of 100 yd. or so, there are towers some 40 ft. in height.

RESERVE SYSTEM HAS 7,500 BANKS

Last Day For Entry Into System Finds Only A Few Out.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The federal reserve system will begin business with a membership of at least 7,500 banks. This was apparent tonight when, at the close of the last day that national banks could signify their intention of accepting the terms of currency law, less than thirty of the 7,493 had failed to respond.

More than enough of the state institution had applied for membership to bring the total up to seventy-five hundred. The official count of the banks and the tabulation of their resources and liabilities will begin tomorrow at the treasury department.

Death of Mr. W. H. Wood.

After an illness of over five weeks, Mr. W. H. Wood departed from this life Sunday evening Feb. 15th.

Mr. Wood was a retired farmer, having lived in Livingston County, Kentucky, until a little over four years ago, he, with his family, came to Orlando, and have made it their home since.

He was fifty-two years of age, and leaves a wife, daughter, and two sons, to mourn his loss, besides a host of friends, both of Orlando and his old home in Kentucky.

He was a devout christian and a member of the First Baptist church of this place. All who knew him loved and respected him. A man who has known him all of his life has this to say of him, "Mr. Wood is a man whose life has been as an open book, and I truly believe there is not an unclean page in it."

The funeral services will be conducted at his home on Lake Cherokee, on Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock, with his pastor, Rev. Dr. Poulson, in charge.—Orlando Fla., Reporter Star.

He was a son of the late Esq. W. F. Wood, of Sinking Fork, and a brother of Mrs. L. W. Guthrie, of this city, and Mrs. W. H. Hill, of Fairview. Other relatives live in this county.

The March Woman's Home Companion.

The March Woman's Home Companion contains a review of the work already done by that publication in the great campaign for Better Babies, which it has been carrying on for a year and which its Better Babies Bureau under the direction of Anna Steese Richardson is to carry on during the coming year. One hundred thousand babies have already been examined at contests and hundreds of thousands of mothers have been helped by scientific suggestions as to how to take care of their children. The Companion has put the movement on a sound basis and attracted to its support the most influential body of medical men in the country, the American Medical Association. It has standardized the Better Babies movement by providing, free of charge, the most thoroughly scientific score-cards, wall charts, books of detailed instruction, and all other needful literature that could be devised by experts; and insisting that these be used in all contests. In other words, the Better Babies Bureau has accomplished in a year what a generation of scattered endeavor could not have brought about. And the movement is still young!

Lippincott's Magazine For March.

The fact that each number of Lippincott's Magazine is complete in itself, without any continued stories or series of stories, is doubtless one reason for this publication's long-continued popularity. You may begin subscribing in the mid-year or at any off date without losing a page. Nothing is continued but the entertainment, and it never flags.

The novelette in the March issue is "The Man in the Street," by Mary Imlay Taylor, author of "The Reaping" and other well-liked books. This is a theatrical story of a unique type, and shows how an ordinarily good and well-intentioned man can be turned into a rascal by force of circumstances. The heroine is an actress, the leading male character, a playwright.

The Strand Magazine for March might be called "the Tango number," since it contains an extraordinarily interesting article on this much discussed and much danced, if improperly, dance. Miss Phyllis Dare, the popular English actress, has written "Tips for the Tango," for which she posed especially for the Strand. The illustrations show the right and the wrong way to take the different fascinating steps of the tango, and in her article Miss Dare has pointed out the common pitfalls, and cautions would-be tangoists against missteps. "The Birds of Fashion," is another article of unusual interest to all magazine readers that will be found in the March Strand. Rarely has any magazine article been so beautifully illustrated by actual photographs of birds of fashion.

SHEEP ON THE FARM

Mutton Is Now More in Favor as Food Than Formerly.

Slaughtering of Animal Is Quite Important Factor—Value of Fruit in the Home Is Underestimated—Needed on Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mutton never has been as highly appreciated in America as it is today.
Probably one reason for this has been the supply of cheap beef that this country has enjoyed up to the past few years. Now that the days of cheap beef are over, it is necessary that some substitute for it be found.
Mutton is the logical solution of the problem, according to Bulletin 20 of the department of agriculture on the management of sheep on the farm.

It is true that the people have to be educated more thoroughly as to its value, but mutton is now more in favor as a food than it used to be. A particular class of American people who have underrated mutton are the farmers, many of whom keep a flock yet seldom, if ever, slaughter one for their own use. A lamb or sheep could frequently be killed for use by the owner and it would prove to be cheaper than buying meat. There would also be the satisfaction of knowing that the meat was fresh and wholesome.

Probably one reason why mutton has not been more popular on the farm is that not enough care has been exercised in slaughtering the sheep.
To get the best mutton a sheep should be slaughtered that is in good health; gaining rather than losing flesh. It should be in fairly high condition also,
as this insures more tender and juicy meat. If the animal is too old the mutton will be tough and unsavory.

No feed should be given for 24 to 36 hours before killing or the carcass will be reddish looking and unattractive, and there will be more danger of the woolly taste. However, plenty of water should be given. The sheep should not be allowed to become excited or overheated, nor should it be driven a long distance immediately before slaughtering. If something of this kind has taken place the sheep should be allowed to recover from it before being killed.

Lamb and mutton should never be used for food until it is thoroughly cooled out. Lamb is as good as it ever will be as soon as it is thoroughly are generally rich in potash and some salts and other minerals. Most fresh fruits are cooling and refreshing. The vegetable acids have a solvent power on the nutrients and are an aid to digestion when not taken in excess.

Fruit and fruit juices keep the blood
in a healthy condition when the supply of fresh meat, fish and vegetables is limited and salt or smoked meats constitute the chief elements of diet. Fresh fruit is generally more appetizing and refreshing than cooked.
For this reason it is often eaten in too large quantities, and frequently

Good Mutton Breed.

When underripe or overripe; but when
of good quality and eaten in moderate quantities it promotes healthy intestinal action and rarely hurts anyone.

If eaten immoderately, uncooked fruit is apt to induce intestinal disturbances. If eaten unripe, it often causes stomach and intestinal irritation; overripe, it has a tendency to ferment in the alimentary canal.
Cooking changes the character and flavor of fruit, and while the product is not so cooling and refreshing as in the raw state, it can, as a rule, be eaten with less danger of causing stomach or intestinal trouble. If sugar be added to the cooked fruit, the nutritive value will be increased. A large quantity of sugar spoils the flavor of the fruit and is likely to make it less easily digested.

Nowhere is there greater need of a generous supply of fruit than on the farm, where the diet is apt to be restricted in variety because of the distance from markets. Every farmer cooled, but mutton improves with ripening for a week at 40 to 45 degrees F. Mutton can be corned, but it is not as palatable nor is it as nutritious as the fresh meat. The hams are sometimes spiced and are considered by many to be a delicacy when prepared in this way.

After dressing, the carcass should be cooled to 40 degrees, or as near that as possible. In the summer it will be necessary to have ice for this purpose. Where there is a farm refrigerator the carcass can be placed in it, provided there is a circulation of dry air and no objectionable odors are present. Mutton can be kept for a week or ten days under these conditions.

Much of the sheepy flavor of mutton comes from the generation of gases in the stomach after the sheep is killed. For this reason sheep should be dressed as rapidly as possible. A platform six or eight inches high is a convenient thing to work on and aids in keeping the blood away from the body, insuring a cleaner carcass.
Water or blood on the whole makes it very difficult to dress the animal nicely.

The Value of Fruit in the Home.

The common fruits, because of their low nutritive value, are not, as a rule,
estimated at their real worth as food,
states the department of agriculture.
Fruit has great dietetic value and should be used generously and wisely, both fresh and cooked. Fruits supply a variety of flavors, sugar, acids and a necessary waste of bulky material for aiding in intestinal movement. They Delicate Smell of Sheep.

The sheep has the most delicate sense of smell of any of the domestic animals and for this reason the rack and troughs from which they feed must not offend this delicacy.

NOBLE LADY PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Pauline G. Lander Died Yesterday After a Week's Illness.

SUCCUMBED TO GRIP.

One of The Oldest And Most Prominent Women In The City.

Mrs. Pauline G. Lander died yesterday afternoon about two o'clock at the home of her niece, Miss Bettie Stevenson, with whom she lived. She was taken with a severe attack of grip a week ago and bronchitis resulted. Her condition became critical Tuesday. Her daughters, Mrs. C. H. Dietrich, of Winchester, Ky., and Miss Alice Lander, who is teaching at London, Ky., were summoned to her bedside. Mrs. Dietrich arrived yesterday morning and Miss Lander came last night. Her step-daughter, Miss Marion Lander, was a so with her.

She seemed to be somewhat improved yesterday morning but suffered a relapse shortly after noon and passed away. Mrs. Lander was a daughter of Wm. C. Lander and was born in Caldwell county, Ky., Nov. 25, 1831, and was in her 83rd year. She was married to Wilson J. Lander nearly fifty years ago and had been a widow for many years. She is survived by two daughters, as above stated, and one step-daughter. Other near relatives are her nieces, Miss Bettie Stevenson, Mrs. A. J. Reeder and Mrs. R. D. Reeder. She was related to many of the well known families of Christian and adjoining counties.

She was a lifelong member of the First Baptist Church and the pastor, Rev. C. M. Thompson, will conduct the funeral services today, the hour not being known at this writing. She was one of the best of women, whose piety was genuine, consistent and unwavering. Her life was a shining example of the religion she professed. Of unusual vigor of mind and studious habits, as well as literary tastes, she was widely informed upon a variety of subjects and was most entertaining in conversation and few people equaled her in her knowledge of the scriptures.

INCORRECTLY REPORTED

Senator Glenn's Bill Is To Amend and Not Appeal.

Editor Hopkinsville Kentuckian:

My attention has been called to the publication in your paper where you stated that I had introduced a bill to repeal the Confederate Pension law. I wish you would correct this statement, for I am the author of the original bill, known as Senate Bill No. 19, passed in 1912. I am only amending this law, creating a Department of Pensions. It is now in the Adjutant General's Office, and the Adjutant General has no time to devote to this work.

I am sure that you will be fair enough with me to print this letter.

Yours truly,

S. R. GLENN.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 18.

HOPKINSVILLE MAN

Now In Redlands, Cal., About To Take a Second Wife.

Notice has been received here of the approaching marriage at Redlands, California, of Mr. Edward A. Stowe to Miss Amanda R. Whaley, of the same place. The date of the wedding is not given, but formal announcement has been made in a Redlands paper. Mr. Stowe spent a month here last fall visiting his brothers, Messrs. G. H. Stowe, of Julien, and R. T. Stowe, of this city. From the voluminous correspondence he carried on while here, the wedding announcement does not come as a surprise.

The 14-months' old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. West, South Walnut street, is very ill and but little hope of his recovery is entertained.

BLAME ON ELDER STATESMEN

Japanese Newspaper Claims Overpoltiteness Is a Weakness of Its Country's Diplomacy.

Japanese diplomats are placed at a disadvantage because of their extreme politeness and their undue deference to Occidental opinion, according to the Tokio Nichi Nichi. This unwholesome fear of the west, the Nichi Nichi thinks, is due largely to the elder statesmen, who had some rather unpleasant experiences with Occidental diplomacy in the early part of the Meiji era. Consequently the wisest and most apt opinions expressed by Japanese are often ignored by authority, while anything urged by a foreigner receives respectful attention. The views and assumptions of western scholars and diplomats are placed above those of men equally able and unprejudiced at home.

"If the attitude were based on intelligent conviction rather than on fear no complaint could be made," says the Nichi Nichi, "but that the foreigner is the bogey of Japanese diplomacy is too evident to be doubted."

"Such an attitude leads to irresolution and incoherency in policy, and injures Japanese rights and interests abroad. Moreover, among the masses it excites a blind admiration for all things foreign, which has led to the adoption of the vile as well as the good in western civilization."

"While Japan should never cease to show due respect to other nations and their customs, she should remember that she has herself to look after and must maintain her self-respect among the powers."

PA'S BIBLICAL KNOWLEDGE

"How did Jonah come to be swallowed by the whale, pa?"

"I suppose he didn't see any sign reading 'Keep Out. This Means You!'"

THAT ENGLISH TALL HAT.

There is a dispute as to whether the tall hat is going, gone, or coming back again, for there are vested and frock-coated interests in its survival. "The other day," says a correspondent from a London suburb, "a man rang the bell; he wore a frock coat and a top hat and he asked if he might trim the hedge." This was a curious inversion of dress. For the owner of the hedge has discarded both these emblems of prosperity.

BACK TO THE SOURCE.

Mr. Hoyle was a most indulgent father, but of late he had commenced to think that his son Arthur was taking advantage of his generosity.

"Why, when I was your age, young man," he said one morning, after a particularly urgent demand for more funds, "I didn't have as much money to spend in a month as you spend in a day."

"Well, dad, don't scold me about it," said the youth. "Why don't you go for grandfather?" — Harper's Magazine.

"He is a musician, is he not?"

"No, indeed."

"But I understand he played in a band?"

"He does."

ILLITERATES IN AMERICA.

In the United States 5,516,163 persons over ten years old do not know how to read or write; 2,773,403 of these are men of voting age, and 417,333 are native-born whites.

DIAMONDS ARE SCARCE

Only 115 Found In The County When Assessor Made His Rounds.

ASSESSMENT $12,471.340.

County Assessment Tabulated By Retiring Assessor Harris.

The books of county assessor L. J. Harris have been tabulated and the grand total of all property assessed for taxation is $12,471,340. This does not include exemptions of $363,500. There are 115 diamonds in the county valued at $8980. Watches, clocks and other jewelry are valued at $4335 and gold, silver and plated ware at $3365. The assessment is about the same as it was in 1912.

FINE TOBACCO

Proposition To Have a Contest To Encourage Growers.

When tobacco raisers hear of a North Christian farmer receiving $13.75 for his best leaf and their highest figure has not gone beyond $10, they naturally want to produce a better crop this year. A proposition suggested by a farmer in the Western part of the county to have a tobacco contest along the lines of the tomato and corn contests, is receiving attention and has impressed agriculturalist Morgan and he will doubtless follow up the suggestion and will be able to do more than any other person to give the contest a start. Once started it will be a go, for there's money in it for those that strive to win the premiums, whether they win or not. Better tobacco will insure better prices and $14 or $15 tobacco in the black patch would have a Burley flavor about it.

THAW CASE

Will Soon Be In The Court of Last Resort.

Concord, N. H., Feb. 25.—The last hearing in the United States court for the district of New Hampshire, in the matter of Harry K. Thaw, was concluded Saturday. Wilam T. Jerome spoke for an hour and a half in opposition to Thaw's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and for admission to bail.

Mr. Jerome asked for permission to file supplementary briefs and was given ten days to do so. Thaw's counsel will reply ten days thereafter. Judge Aldrich then will render his decision and an appeal will be taken immediately by one side or the other to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The deceased was the younger son of the late Luther R. Hubbard, of this county. Over two years ago he was married to Miss Myrdie Lee Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pope Miller, of Pembroke, who survives him, as well as his mother, brother and one sister, all of whom live in Blytheville.

Mr. Hubbard was 23 years old and death was caused by empyema. The body was accompanied here by his mother, Mrs. Annie Gaines Hubbard and by his wife, sister and brother. The funeral services were held at the First Baptist Church at three o'clock, by Rev. C. M. Thompson.

BASEBALL.

Paducah will give Duberry, a new catcher from Jackson, a try-out.

The new Federal league has signed 175 players.

Henderson, this year has the nucleus of a good club to start with, including Rodgers, the pitcher who did not lose a game last year; Leach, one of the hardest working pitchers in the league; Bailey, a good heady pitcher; Weber, the fastest man in the Kitty; Cahill, one of the best, if not the best short-stop in the league; Peck and Cassel, the two reliable catchers.

A Blind Musician.

Chattanooga has a blind musician, organist at the Centenary Church, whose powers are a marvel. His name is Daniel M. Coleman, and he is one of a family of four blind children and for years held a position as a traveling salesman for a piano house and is now Manager of a piano store in Chattanooga.

New Store at Lafayette.

Lander Bros. have moved the remnant of their Julian stock to Lafayette and A. B. Lander has made it the nucleus of a general merchandise store, which has been started there. Lander Bros. already have a hardware store in Lafayette. G. W. Allen, late of Garrettsburg, has opened a store at Julien.

Young Wife's Tragic Death.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 23.—Mrs. Lawrence Simpson, who shot herself yesterday with her husband's revolver, the family say by accident died today at her country home near here. She was the daughter of Dr. William Wilder, of Chicago, and was a society girl there before she married Simpson, a wealthy turfman here November 1, 1913. The coroner's inquest has not yet been held. The husband found the body when he returned from an inspection trip on his farm. The family scouted the idea of suicide, claiming Mrs. Simpson was absolutely happy in her surroundings.

Rome Had Sky-Scrapers.

Ancient Rome had sky-scrapers, and frequently they would fall down. Emperor Augustus limited the height of new houses that opened upon the streets to about sixty-eight feet in order to make less frequent such disasters. Martial alludes to a poor man, a neighbor, who was obliged to mount 200 steps to reach his garret.
